

POLITICS ASSAILED IN HEALTH SERVICE

Changes Urged by President
Vincent of Rockefeller Foundation.

NEW YORK, May 25.—George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, in his annual summary of medical activities of the organization, yesterday urged that public departments of health be taken out of politics.

"A public function which calls for technical expertise is hopelessly handicapped if it is created as the spoils of a political boss or of a victorious party machine," he asserted. "To no public service does this more strikingly apply than to a department of health. The moment efforts are made to influence appointments, promotions, salaries, policies, law enforcement by individual pressure for political or party ends the demoralization of the work begins. The degree to which such things are possible is an index to the intelligence, spirit and character of any community."

Prevention Greater Goal.
The prevention of disease is steadily tending to become the goal of the medical profession, although there has been, and still is, a tendency on the part of the average physician "to look through the microscope of cure rather than through the telescope of prevention," Mr. Vincent asserted.

"The leaders of the medical profession have not generally taken the myopic view," he continued. "They have, on the contrary, been the very prophets of preventive medicine, and they are increasingly regarding experience with individuals as a means of protecting the community against it. The application, by men of imagination and organizing ability, of the scientific knowledge of the origin, spread and prevention of disease has been a boon to mankind."

Extensive Activities.
The Rockefeller Foundation was reported by Mr. Vincent to have engaged in the following activities: "Continued a quarter million annual appropriation to the School of Hygiene and Health at Johns Hopkins University; pledged two millions to Harvard for a school of health."

"Contributed to public health training in Czechoslovakia, Brazil and the United States; aided the Pasteur Institute of Paris."

"Underwrote an experimental pay clinic in the Cornell Medical School; formally opened a complete modern medical school and hospital in Peking, and assisted twenty-five other medical centers in China; promised a million dollars for the medical school of Columbia University."

"Contracted three and a half millions for the rebuilding and reorganization of the medical school and hospital of the Free University of Brussels."

"Made surveys of medical schools in Japan, China, the Philippines, Indo-China, Straits Settlements, Siam, India, Syria and Turkey."

"Defrayed expenses of commissions from Great Britain, Belgium, Serbia and Brazil; provided 157 fellowships in hygiene, medicine, physics, chemistry to representatives of eighteen countries."

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 25.—Despite heroic efforts of three bathers, a seaplane and two lifeguards to save her, twelve-year-old Edna Bowens of Philadelphia was carried out several hundred yards from shore by the undertow and drowned.

The three bathers, who first swam to the girl's assistance, also were carried out by the heavy undertow and were rescued with difficulty by Roger McKenna, a lifeguard. When he had tugged them to where others could lend aid the three men were pulled in by a rope and McKenna returned to the surf to help rescue the girl.

The seaplane, piloted by A. Livingston Allen, was unable to locate the girl, and after circling a number of times Allen picked up McKenna beyond the breaker line and brought him to the beach.

The girl's body finally was located and brought ashore by a lifeguard, who leaped, fully clothed, from a pier and swam to the spot where he had seen her go down.
